

AMATEUR RADIO PREFIXES

The following list shows Amateur Radio callsign prefixes that are currently in use, and many which have been used in the past. The CQ and ITU Zones relating to each prefix are shown where possible. The absence of a zone number indicates that the prefix covers an area in more than one zone

The ITU block allocations, which are shown in italics, are included to aid identification of any prefixes which have not yet been added to the list. The superseded and unofficial prefixes are included as they are useful when checking old logs to determine whether a country has been worked before. Where appropriate, unspecified letters are denoted by "x" and unspecified numbers are denoted by "n".

This list needs constant amendment as National Administrations continually issue new prefixes.
